Thanksgiving.

Come one, come all! Come home, come home!
From desert sands, and ocean foam,
Beneath the honored home roof-tree,
Join hands and hearts, and you shall see
  Sweet thoughts, pure love, and honest living
  Flow from the keeper of Thanksgiving.

'Tis then the dead become most dear;
'Tis then the living bring most cheer;
'Tis then the best within us seems
Aspiring toward our youthful dreams,
  And life looks really worth the living,
  In the old homestead at Thanksgiving.

Thanks, grim old Puritans, to you,
Who "builded better than ye knew!"
True, ye were hard and stern, 'tis said
Intolerant and bigoted,
  But one sweet gift is of your giving—
  Thanks, sad old pilgrims, for Thanksgiving!

Ursula's Thanksgiving.

The little mountain stream was all choked with dead leaves; the gourd-shell lay broken in pieces among the yellowing ferns; and as Ursula stopped to gather up a scarlet vine-leaf which still retained its vivid glow, the setting sun burst from a bank of sullen clouds and seemed to encircle the whole world with a belt of amber light, while a sudden gust of frost-scented, autumnal wind swept the leaf from her hand and sent it eddying fantastically down the dark wood-path.

Ursula sighed.

"It is like an omen of evil," said she. "I was thirsty, and the spring is full of leaves and the shell broken; I wanted the bright leaf, and the wind has blown it away. And I don't know how I am ever to tell grandfather and grandmother about the district school."

Then, quickening her footsteps, she hurried down the road, never pausing until she reached an old, steep-roofed house, painted a dull red, and half hidden by the giant boughs of huge chestnut trees.

There had been an old toll-gate there once, but it had long been disused, and nothing remained of it but a sort of picturesque arch over the roadway, all twined with wild vines.

And Grandfather Hall was carrying an armful of wood into the kitchen door as Ursula came up. Grandmother Hall was knitting by the fire, in her cushioned rocker.

It was five years since Grandmother Hall had put her feet to the floor, yet she was indomitably cheerful through it all. If there was a bright side to anything, Grandmother Hall always found it out; if not, she set herself to work to imagine one.

"Ah, here you are, Ursuly!" said the old man, mournfully. "And high time you come. The old turkey-hen is lost, and the apple sass is scorched, and Lewis Crawford hain't called for them eggs, and if they ain't sold we shan't have a penny to put in the contribution-plate to-morrow, after the Thanksgiving services.

"Laws sakes, father," said Mrs. Hall, "what's the use of rainin' evil news on Ursula like that? Don't you see she looks pale and tired? The turkey-hen is safe in the branches of the secket pear-tree; I saw her just now. And as for the apple-sass, I don't dislike a little scorch myself; it gives flovor. And I'm sartin sure Lewis Crawford'll come along yet. It ain't late, you know."

And, leaning over until you would have been sure she must lose her balance, Grandmother Hall opened the oven-door to see how the johnny-cakes were getting on. For corn-meal was cheap, and the old lady had a fashion of reproducing it in every possible style.

"Granny," said Ursula, with a quivering lip, "I'd better tell you at once Squire Dean's daughter is to have the district school next quarter, They don't need my services any longer, they say. Oh, granny, granny! what is to become of us?"

Old Mr. Hall sat down with a groan.

"I knowed there was some ill luck coming," said he. "There was a rabbit ran across the orchard path when I went to pick up apples — right square across the path!"

"Father, don't," said the old lady, swallowing some sort of a lump in her throat. "That's clear superstition. Don't fret, Ursuly. We shall get along somehow, never fear."

"Oh, yes," sighed Grandfather Hall, satirically, "we shall get along, even if we have to burn up the side of the house to keep us warm, and gnaw our finger-ends for food. Things is coming to a crisis now, mother. Squire Dean was over to see me about the place to-day. It's to be sold at auction — Monday, two weeks — and I'd like to know what is to become of us then. Ah, it was a black day when I lent that money to Stephen Gregson, and burdened the old house with debt. I might have known he was a scamp, or he wouldn't have wanted to go away and leave the spot where he was born."

Ursula winced at this. She knew perfectly well that if it had not been for her persuasions, Grandfather Hall never would have mortgaged his house and farm.

Six per cent seemed a golden investment; and besides — besides, Ursula had liked Stephen Gregson, with his bright, blue eyes, his clear voice, and his contagiously sanguine temperament.

"When I've made my fortune, Ursula," he had said, gaily, "I'll come back and marry you."

"Don't talk nonsense, Stephen," she had said, with a laugh.

But it had not seemed like nonsense in the secret depths of her heart.

She had pondered many and many a time over his emphatic words, but they had failed to come true.

Probably Stephen Gregson hadn't made the expected fortune. Certain it was that he had not come home to marry her. And Ursula was beginning to coincide with Grandfather Hall's misanthropic theory — that all the world was askew.

Grandmother Hall was silent. She was glad now that she had never told her husband and Ursula about the twenty-five dollars that she had lent cousin Abby Miller — the hoarded store of silver in the stocking-leg, which she had parted with to help the friendless old maid to open a little millinery in the city.

"I'm afraid it's money thrown away," thought Grandmother Hall. "I did s'pose Abby would at least have written word about it. But there! what is the use of crying about spilled milk? I dare say Abby feels as bad about it as I do, poor, solitary creetur! Anyway, Ursuly," she said, breaking the oppressive silence, "there's one thing we have to be thankful for — the pumpkins ripened splendidly in the corn-stubble, and I guess you'd better slice up one to-night for the pies; and father must cut the hen-turkey's head off bright and early. It may be our last Thanksgiving in the old place, and we'll keep it as it ought to be kept. Come, the tea is drawn—we'll all feel better for a good, hot cup."

Ursula, too, was discouraged. Grandmother Hall saw it in her face, even though she spoke no word.

They had scarcely seated themselves at the little round cherry-table, when a knock came to the door.

"It's the sheriff to serve the mortgage paper," said old Mr. Hall, whose ideas of the law were rather vague.

"It's Lewis Crawford after the eggs," said Mrs. Hall, more hopefully.

But it was neither one nor the other It was a little old woman in a black silk hat, a respectable cloth cloak and a brown-stuff dress—Miss Abby Miller herself.

"Good evening, Cousin Hall!" said she. "I've come to spend Thanksgiving with you."

"But first," said Miss Abby, "I must pay my debts. Here's the twenty-five dollars I borrowed of you, with ten dollars for interest; and I know, Cousin Hall, you'll be pleased to know that I've prospered and made money in the millinery business, that I never could have got into if it hadn't been for your good nature and generosity. And here," producing a willow basket nearly as large as herself, "is the finest turkey in Fulton Market, and three quarts of cranberries, and a dozen of oranges, and a pot of guava jelly; my contribution to to-morrow's housekeeping. And if it was forty times as much, it wouldn't be half what I owe you, Cousin Hall!"

And Miss Abby Miller, failing in an attempt to laugh, began to cry, and ended up by hugging old Mrs Hall with all her might.

Tea was hardly over before a new visitor arrived on the scene—Doctor Purdy, the chairman of the local board of trustees.

"What's this about Squire Dean's daughter ousting you from your place, Miss Hall?" he asked.

"I have been told—" began Uusula.

"No matter what you have been told," said the doctor. "I've seen Mr. McAllister, and he and I both agreed that you are not to be disturbed. You suit us exactly, and we intend that you shall retain the position, if there were a dozen Miss Deans to be provided for. You'll remain, eh?"

"Gladly, if you wish it," said Ursula, visibly brightening up.

"And if Dean don't like it, he can lump it," added Doctor Purdy, independently.

He had not been gone half an hour when the knocker—they never had arrived at the dignity of a door-bell at Grandfather Hall's — sounded again.

"Why," cried the old lady, who sat where she could see the door, "it's—it's Stephen Gregson!"

"Of course its Stephen Gregson," said a deep, masculine voice. "And he's travelled night and day to be in time to spend his Thanksgiving day with the best friends he has in the world. And I should have been here earlier," cordially wringing the hands of all the group as he spoke, "if I hadn't stopped at Squire Dean's to clap a stopper on that confounded mortgage business he's so sharp after."

"Ain't the place to be foreclosed, then?" said Grandfather Hall, in a half-comprehending manner.

"Foreclosed!" shouted Stephen Gregson. "Not if I know it. And the thing never would have been thought of if the lawyers I wrote to in New York hadn't been scamps and cleared out with the money I sent 'em six months ago to pay up the mortgage. However, here I am in time at last, with the amount of the debt I owe you, safely lodged in the Wickham Bank, and enough besides to settle up all costs and charges. Why, how well you all look! And Miss Abby Miller has actually grown young, and Ursula's cheeks are as pink as crape-myrtle. Yes, yes, Ursula, our old dreams have come true. I've made my fortune, and I've come back to marry you."

Ah, inconsiderate lover that he was thus to blurt out his courtship before the old people and Miss Miller.

But it never was Stephen Gregson's way to be secretive; and they all seemed to be as much interested about it as Ursula herself. But they had the discretion not to look toward that particular part of the kitchen where the big fish-geranium grew in a painted tub, when Stephen and Ursula had gone there to look at the new scarlet buds, just opening out.

"It seems like a dream!" said Ursula, ecstatically, as she and Stephen together stood at the window, watching the moon wade through the masses of struggling cloud. "Grandfather and grandmother provided for; the dear old home all our own; you back here, faithful and unchanged, and our wedding to be in February. Oh, how can ever be thankful enough?"

And old Mrs. Hall answered, fervently:

"I shall keep Thanksgiving all my life!"

Nautical Eloquence.

A speaker who attempts to use nautical metaphors should be thoroughly familiar with the sea and the working of a ship, or he will strand his speech. A clergyman was once supplying a pulpit by the seaside. Thinking to impress the truth more distinctly upon the congregation, many of whom were seamen, he drew the figure of a ship trying to enter a harbor against a high wind.

Unfortunately for the success of his metaphor, he knew little of seamanship. After putting the ship into several singular positions, he cried out in a tone intended to be emphatic:

"What shall we do next?"

"The Lord only knows," exclaimed a disgusted old tar, "unless you let her drift stern foremost."

The prince of sailor-preachers, Father Taylor, was once silenced by a compliment to his eloquence. He had depicted the impenitent sinner under the figure of a storm-tossed ship, with her sails split, and driven by the gale toward the rock-bound coast of Cape Ann.

"O, how," he exclaimed, in tones of despair, "shall this sin-tossed sinner be saved?"

Instantly an old salt in the gallery, who had listened with open mouth and straining eyes to the preacher, jumped to his feet, and in a voice that would have sounded above a hurricane, shouted:

Superstitious Mormon Women.

A ghastly burial ceremony that is practised by the Mormons rivets the hold polygamy has on the superstition of these creatures. Every wife that is buried has a black cloth laid on her face, and the Mormon women are taught to believe that on the resurrection day, when the righteous are called into the joys of their Lord, no hand but that of a husband can remove the cloth, and that unless the cloth is lifted by his hand she must remain in outer darkness forever. A woman who believes that—and the Mormon women believe it- can't help behaving herself, no matter how many wives her husband takes. She has to keep on the right side of the only man who can take off that cloth.—Chicago Tribune.

SCIENTIFIC SCRAPS.

By careful measurements, Prof D. P. Penhallow has determined the root and the leaf areas of the indian corn plant to be approximately equal.

The last observations indicate that we are distant from the sun about 92,700,000 miles. These are figures obtained as near as may be from the observations of the last Venus transits.

Prof. F. Farsky has experimented with sulphuric acid as one of its sodium compounds for manuring clayey soil. Both were without action upon moist soils, and caused a reduction of the yield of a dry soil.

Were a man weighing 150 pounds endowed with the strength of a beetle, some time ago exhibited by Dr. Thebold at a scientific meeting, he should be able to move 198,000 pounds, or nearly 100 tons. The insect weighed two grains, and moved 2,640 grains.

Tince the construction of railways in Italy malarial disease has become more prevalent and more severe than before. It is supposed that this effect is due to the influence exerted by the numerous earth cuttings necessary for the laying of tracks, and to the greater use of stagnant water.

The introduction of electricity as a substitute for lamps and candles on board ship is making rapid progress There is one source of safety in this to the ship and the passengers. All lights are put out at 11 o'clock. After this time people may talk in the dark, but there is no possibility of reckless use of lights and lamps.

The hen has in her ovaries, in round numbers, more than 600 germs, which develop gradually and are successively laid. Of these 600 the hen will lay twenty in her first year, 135 in her second and 114 in her third. In each one of the following four years the number of eggs will be diminished by twenty, and in her ninth year she will lay at most ten eggs. In order to obtain from them sufficient product to cover the expense of alimentation they should not be allowed to live over four years.

A Wound From a Stag's Horn.

Throughout the West Highlands, a wound from a stag's horn is believed to be very dangerous. It is difficult to cure, and often causes extreme debility and bad health. Gamekeepers, foresters, and their assistants dread it extremely, and say that a dog which receives such a wound usually dies from gangrene or mortification of the sore, however slight it may seem at first. If he recovers, the result is almost equally unsatisfactory; the dog becomes paralytic in the wounded limb or epileptic; or if he has been a wise and intelligent creature, he now becomes perfectly stupid. The author of "Nether Lochaber" was personally acquainted with a fine-looking young man, an assistant forester, who, in helping to take a dead stag off a hill-pony's back, was accidentally wounded in the leg by one of the tines. He did not think much of the wound at the time. It was an ugly, ragged gash, but not deep, and he had more than once had much more serious wounds which had healed at once easily "by the first intention," as the doctors say. This wound from the dead stag's horn would not, however, heal; none of the salves or ointments or healing medicaments of the glen had the least effect upon it. It always became the longer the worse, and when Mr. Stewart saw the young man he was on his way to Glasgow to see if the skill of the doctors there could counteract the dire effect of the stag's horn.—Chambers' Journal.

Listen, Boys!

Wordsworth says, "The Boy is Father of the Man;" and the Cleveland, (Ohio) Farmer offers this good advice to aspiring boys:

The highest attainment for you, my boy! is to be a man. This world is full of counterfeits. But it is a grand thing to stand upright in defence of truth and principle. When persecutions come, some hide their faces until the storm passes by; others can be bought for a mess of pottage. From such an one, turn away. But stand by a friend; be a man; do not run away when danger threatens to overwhelm him or yourself. Think for yourself. Read good books and read men's faces. The eye is the window to the soul; use your eyes and hold your tongue. If opposition comes meet it manfully. If success crowns your efforts bear it quietly. Do your own thinking and keep your own secrets, worship no man for his wealth nor his lineage. Fine feathers don't always cover fine birds. Be sober, be honest, be just in all your dealings with the world; be true. They will sell you for money or popularity; don't trust them. Wear but one face and let that be an honest one.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

Its Origin, History, and Some of its Observances.

The Magazine of American History gives us the history of Thanksgiving day and its origin. From the papers we learn that the earliest thanksgiving service was held by the Church of England men. The Popham colonists, who, August 9, 1607 (O. S.) landed upon Monhegan, near the Kennebec, and under the shadow of a high cross, listened to a sermon by Chaplain Seymour, "giving good thanks for our happy meetings and safe arrival in the country."

Next we pass to Plymouth, where in 1621, the autumn after the arrival, a notable thanksgiving was held. The brief accounts present a joyous picture. As we learn from Winslow, the harvest being gathered, the governor "sent four men out fowling, that so we might, after a special manner, rejoice together," and the traditional turkey was added to the abundant venison. The people gave themselves up to recreation, and the great chief Massasoit was feasted for three days with his ninety swarthy retainers.

Possibly on this first Plymouth thanksgiving, there was more carousing than we suppose, while there is not the slightest indication of any religious observance. Massasoit and his braves, no doubt, enjoyed it all greatly, as the thanksgiving idea was entertained by the Indians before their contact with the whites, and in their celebrations there was much excess. How much "comfortable warm water" the grave and reverend elders themselves consumed during those three days of jollity, Bradford does not say.

In 1622 there is no mention of thanksgiving, but in 1623 a day was kept, not, however, in the autumn as a harvest festival, but in July, upon the arrival of some provisions. After this nothing more is heard of thanksgiving at Plymouth for nearly half a century. So far as the colonial records go, they indicate that the day did not find a revival until 1668, when there was some kind of a thanksgiving. Again, June 27, 1689, there was a thanksgiving for the accession of William and Mary. In 1690 an autumal thanksgiving was held, and the next year Plymouth colony was merged in Massachusetts, and so passes out of the story. If any festival can be said to have been established, it was established in imitation of the customs across the sea. Distinct religious societies, however, may have kept occasional thanksgivings, as the people at Barnstable observed thanksgiving on December 22, 1636, and December 11, 1639.

In the Massachusetts colony the first thanksgiving was held at Boston, July 8, 1630, it being a special occasion, having no reference to harvests. Again, in February, 1631, there was a thanksgiving, as already noticed. In the October following a thanksgiving was held for the safe arrival of "Mrs. Winthrop and her children." In these appointments we do not find the thanksgiving that we know to-day, nor do we detect any fell design against Christmas. In 1632, on June 5, there was a thanksgiving for the victories in the Palatinate, and in October another for the harvest. In 1637 there was a thanksgiving for victory over the Pequots, and in 1638 for the arrival of ships and for the harvest. The thanksgiving days from 1634 to 1684, numbered about twenty-one, or less than one in every two years. The celebration of 1676 had special reference to the victory over King Philip. From this period until the revolution, a thanksgiving of some kind occurred nearly every other year, and even twice in the same year, as in 1742. Some of these days were appointed by the royal governors, while again they were ordered by the King or Queen or by the home board of trade.

After the close of the revolution a tendency to make Thanksgiving day a regular institution in New York, was at once apparent, and Gov. John Jay, in 1795, issued a proclamation for the 11th of November. The act, however, was seized upon by politicians, who maintained that he was seeking to flatter religious prejudices.

At an early period, also, the Mayors of New York were accustomed to appoint a day of thanksgiving, in accordance with the recommendations of the council, and that of December 16, 1799, appears to have been the first so ordered. Yet the observance of the day until Gov. Clinton's time was more or less broken. The festival was kept, however, by Episcopalians, according to the provisions of the prayer-book, other religious bodies at the same time following their own preferences. Clinton's course, like Jay's, excited criticism. At the east end of Long Island there was no little murmuring because the day did not coincide with the local custom. It appears that the people of East and Southampton observed thanksgiving on the Thursday after the cattle were driven home from the common pastures at Montauk Point, the day of the return of the cattle being fixed annually, with due solemnity, at the town meeting. Hence there was a collision, and the herdsmen were divided, striving as the herdsmen of Abram's cattle strove with those of Lot. But this was no case of an immovable body opposed to an irresistible force, and therefore the opponents of Clinton gave away, though not without many expostulations. Here was the beginning of the movement which led to the first Presidential proclamation nationalizing Thanksgiving day.

Children's Games and Frolics.

A quiet blind man's buff game which may be played in the house is known by the euphonious name of "Still pond no moving." One child is blindfolded and stands in the middle of the room, counting a hundred by fives, then calls out "Still pond no moving." The others hide in some part of the room, and the one who is "it" gropes about until he catches some one, whom he must name. If any one moves, then he is blindfolded and has to be "it."

A lady in Brooklyn, who has four little girls and three small boys, has a game for them called "Housekeeping." Every morning they clean up their nursery. Two of them have little brooms and they do the sweeping, while a little tot of three years in a pink cap and apron takes up the dust in a tiny dust-pan. The boys move the furniture about and then they all dust. They also dust the two parlors every morning, and seldom break anything. This is good exercise for them and they enjoy it greatly. No grown up person bothers them while they work, but their mother inspects it and points out improvements after it is done.

"Oh, how I wish it was warm weather, so the children could play out doors!" is an exclamation often heard during the months of cold weather. But the many hours a child spends indoors during winter ought to be filled with play of an amusing and instructing character. In the first place do not forbid the children the kitchen, for in that most busy room of the house they may learn many useful things; and what child does not like to see cakes and pies made, and have the dish the cake was mixed in after the cake is in the oven, or make a little pie or cake of his own out of a piece of dough?

Another mother in the city who has a large family of children has a game for them which they play every night. It is called "Circus" by the children and affords an excellent opportunity for exercise. They all form in a straight line with their arms folded behind them, and march backward and then forward to gay music played by their mother, singing some simple music, such as

"Six little children all in a row,
Backward, forward, here we all go."

Then they place the hands clasped over the head and march again singing; then they place their hands on each other's shoulders and march. One child recites a little poem every night, and is crowned with a wreath of flowers, the children forming a circle about her and singing. Then the father holds a spelling match, over which they have great fun, after which they sing a hymn and go off to bed, their eyes sparkling with fun and exercise, and their memories, voices and lungs gaining strength by the game.

A useful and instructive game for children a little older is called "Finding." Each one has a map, say of Asia, or they all cluster around a big map. Some one of them says "Find Pekin." Then they hunt for it and whoever finds it first and locates it properly has the next turn.—New York Journal.

The Laws of Trade.

"Twenty-three dollars for that 'ere stove?" she exclaimed, before a Wall Street News man, as she held up her hands in horror.

"Yes'm—twenty-three."

"But iron is down."

"Yes."

"I've seen in the papers during the last month where as many as six big iron companies have failed."

"Well?"

"Well, that ought to make stoves cheaper, and I know it."

"Madam, in the last two months death has laid his hand upon as many as twenty-five young 'uns in this town."

"Yes, poor things."

"But are nursing-bottles any cheaper than three months ago?"

"N-o," she slowly admitted.

"Of course not, madam. The laws of trade are immutable. The best I can do is to throw in a horseradish grater, if you take the stove at $23."

The Thrush.

Glad prophet hidden in the leaves,
  Thy sudden flute strikes through the rain;
The air a thrill of hope receives,
  The day begins to breathe again—
  The dull day weeping ceaseless rain.

The world may weep, yet sound of tears
  But faintly stirs this cloistered space,
Where noiseless feet of passing years
  Fall on soft lawns and leave no trace,
  But cast fresh spells about the place.

Ah, not for us such green repose,
  Gray wall-girt stillness, brooding air
Where floats the soul of each dead rose
The endless years have seen unclose.
  And pass, sweet ghost, to haunt the air.

Sing loud, and bid us dream no more
  In this fair prison of the soul,
But rise and gird us, and before
  The sun sets hasten toward the goal,
  Break loose these sweet bonds of the soul.

Sing 'mid the falling leaves thy song
  Of hope, though Autumn's breath is here;
The day is short, the way is long.
Up! let us labor and be strong.
  Nor falter till the end appear.

—E. C. Bradley, in Harper's Magazine.

HUMOROUS.

An exchange has an elaborate article for amateur vocalists, "How to begin to sing." How to get them to quit is still an unsolved problem.

When your parlor-furniture gets all worn threadbare, have it covered with muslin; then everyone will think it is new, and that you have covered it to preserve the delicate-hued satin.

Ice cream, being of a high temperature, impairs the teeth, and predisposes them to decay. Young man, cut this out and show it to your girl, if you want to save money next summer.

"Rats," says a writer in Chambers' Journal, "are very cleanly animals." Oh, they are; they are. No matter how careless your servants are, you can always depend on the rats to clean out the pantry.

There is an old proverb which says, "You cannot get more out of a bottle than was put in it This is a mistake. A man can get all that was put in the bottle, and in addition to this can get $10, or thirty days.

"I tell you," said the bad boy, confidentially, to a group of youthful friends," my mother may seem small—don't believe she'd weigh more than I do in her stocking feet—but her slippers is heavy, though, you bet!"

A farmer, in "setting" a hen, made a mistake, and got hold of a number of porcelain nest-eggs instead of the genuine article. She is doing all she can, but there is a tired look of wonder in her eyes that is pitiful to see.

"Love lightens labor." "Yes, it does," is Burdette's comment, "and when you've taken a fat girl out for a sail, and the wind goes down to a dead calm, and you have six miles to row against the tide with a steering oar and a canoe paddle, 'labor lightens love,' now you bet your blisters."

Japanese Customs.

The umbrella is an institution in Japan. Whether it owes its invention to this people or not, they avail themselves largely of its uses. The Japanese umbrella is a sensible article in its amplitude and lightness, being made of paper and bamboo. When under one of them a man is nearly as safe as if he was under a shed, so far as the falling rain is in question, and the shade it affords from the sun is "like unto that of a great rock in a weary land." When folded, however, it possesses a volume that is rather unwieldy and inartistic in appearance. The average Japanese is seldom seen without his umbrella. It is an indispensable article of comfort, and rain or shine he places himself under its protection. If the same array of umbrellas was to be seen on our streets that is constantly in sight on the street here it would be a novel spectacle, especially on a bright, sunny day.

The garment most commonly worn is suited for all the needs of warmth or coolness. It is made with wide, flowing, square sleeves, and it is wrapper-shaped, open in front from top to bottom and confined at the waist by a long band wound around the body a number of times. It is a very simple outfit. Comfort cannot exact anything more simple. In the cold season these garments are duplicated by the addition of wadded articles of the same character. The great multitude wear for headgear simply a piece of blue cloth tied about the temples, though the straw hat is fast coming into use with many. Of course, there are many who have adopted the European styles of costume throughout from head to foot. The native dress of the Japanese is not a costly one. One of the garments in use in summer will cost about one dollar and a half if made of cotton; more, of course, if silk.

The Elections.

Although the Democrats have lost Pennsylvania there is nothing to discourage them in the result of the elections of the several states this fall, considered as the preliminary battles to the Presidential election in 1884. The Democrats gained Ohio, with a clear, well deined majority over all. They wrenched Virginia from the iron grip of the repudiator Mahone. They keep New Jersey, New York and Maryland undisputably, even with the head of the ticket in New York defeated, because opposed by the liquor interests and a large part of the Catholic vote.

Strong efforts were made to wrest Maryland from the Democrats, but she stood firm and is as safe for the Democratic candidate for President next year as any state in the Union.

The loss of Pennsylvania is more than made up by the gain of Ohio and Virginia. And if the Democratic House of Congress will but supplement these victories by timely and wholesome legislation the party will enter upon the Presidential contest with very good prospects of success

NILES' majority is the state is between 16,000 and 17,000. Livsey will run up close to 19,000. The official result will not materially change these figures.

THE people have decided that to pay interests on the state debt and loan out the surplus funds to favorite banks owned by the radical bosses, is the proper thing for our state officials to do—Humes law or no Humes law.

A short vacation from politics and then—the Presidential campaign of 1884.

AT any rate Penn's Valley is not to blame. She did her duty nobly.

BEN BUTLER will not be the next President—nor will Billy Mahone.

A Fair Statement.

The following is the Philadelphia Times' deliverance on the result of the elections this fall. It is a fair, truthful and impartial statement on the present status of the two great political parties, and with it is coupled a wise, broad, prophetic hint as to which party will probably be victorious in the Presidential battle next year:

The general verdict of the November States leaves the parties about easy in honors for the start in the Presidential race, the only material odds of the year being in the Democratic gain of Ohio. Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Minnesota and Nebraska are Republican, and Maryland, Virginia, New York and New Jersey are Democratic. New York was distracted by Kelly speculations and factious feuds, but the vote shows that the State is Democratic. New Jersey, Maryland and Virginia were all hotly contested, but they are safely anchored for Democratic Electoral votes in 1884.

The greatest peril to the Democracy was the Virginia contest. Had Mahone won Virginia, that state would have been transferred to the Republicans, and it would have been only the beginning of the end of Democratic rule in the South. But Mahone is beaten, and he may now go to the Republican National Convention, but the vote of his State won't be in his pocket.

The two parties start pretty nearly square for 1884, with the only odds in the Ohio Democratic victory, and the skirmishing of 1883 settles nothing beyond the fact that the great battle of next year is entirely unsettled and must settle itself. The party that now best serves its country in the coming Congress, will best serve itself in the struggle for the Presidency.

Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 12th, 1883.

The intense interest which prevailed here, in the various State elections, has given way to a feeling of serene satisfaction among democrats and a corresponding depression in the ranks of the administration republicans. More interest was felt here in Virginia than in any other State, because it was thought to have a more important bearing upon the approaching Presidential election. The result there is not very encouraging to the President, whose only really distinct policy has been the alliance with Mahone. It now looks as though the Arthur delegation, promised by Mahone, to the republican national convention would not be such a powerful factor in the deliberations of that body as was once anticipated. The little Virginia trickster and trader, for whom the republicans in the Senate and in the administration paid such a big price, is irretrievably crushed. Taking the results over the country as a whole, the general feeling here is that Mr. Arthur's boom has been punctured. His chances for a renomination are now considered just about as slim as would be his hope of election if nominated. For weeks the administration organ here has been proclaiming that the only hope of the republicans for success in '84 was in carrying Virginia and North Carolina. That hope has now become one of the most forlorn prospects a political party ever contemplated, and the leaders fully realize it notwithstanding all their efforts at whistling to keep up the courage of the rank and file. Thanksgiving Day.

Gov. Pattison has issued the following proclamation designating Thursday 29th inst., as a day of Thanksgiving and prayer:

In the name and by the authority of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Robert E. Pattison, governor of the said commonwealth:

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

It is fitting that a people should pause amidst the enjoyments of prosperity to gratefully acknowedge the Divine Author of their blessings:

Now, therefore, I, Robert E. Pattison, governor of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do recommend Thursday, the 29th day of November, A. D. 1883, as a day of Thanksgiving and prayer. During the past year our state and common country have been marvellously exempted from calamity. We have continued to preserve relations of concord with all communities of men. No part of our people has been seriously afflicted with disaster. Our industries have thriven and our harvest been bountiful. The toil of the laborer has not been in vain and the rewards of thrift are everywhere manifest. Tumult and dissensions have been averted; quiet has dwelt with plenty and our republic of states has continued to live in the undiminished affections of the people. Conscience and reason alike teach that these blessings have not resulted from chance, but are due to the merciful goodness of the supreme God of the universe. That they may be our continuing heritage we should manifest a grateful spirit of thanksgiving to their gracious Giver. To praise for past blessings we should, also, add devout entreaty for their continuance, and the amelioration of the lot of those whom misfortune and poverty oppress. The destitute, the unemployed and the stricken should have remembrance in our prayers.

In conformity, therfore, with the uniform custom sanctioned by the religious sense of our states to appoint general days of thanksgiving and prayer I iss ue this proclamation.

Support Your Home Paper.

The following article, from a leading Chicago paper, tells a good deal of truth in a few words: What tells so readily the standard of a town or city as the appearance of its paper? And its youth or its age can as well be determined as by a personal notice. The enterprise of its citizens is depicted by its advertisements, their liberality by the looks of the paper. Some papers show a good, solid, healthy foundation, plethoric purses, and a well-to-do appearance generally; others show a striving to contend with the grasping thousands around them, trying to wrench out an existence from the close-fisted community around them. An occasional meteoric display in its columns of a telegram or local, or editorials, shows what it can do if it had the means, but it cannot continue its expensive work until support comes which ought to readily be granted. A newspaper is like a church; it wants fostering, then it can reflect credit on its location. Take your home paper. It gives you more news of immediate interest than New York or other papers; it talks for you when other localities belie you; it stands up for your rights; you always have a champion in your home paper, and those who stand up for you should certainly be well sustained. Your interests are kindred and equal, and you must rise or fall together. Therefore, it is to your interest to support your home paper; not grudgingly but in a liberal spirit; not as a disagreeable duty, but as an investment that will amply pay the expenditure.

Miscellaneous.

"ABE" BUZZARD'S GANG.

Daring Outrages by the Robber Chief and His Men.

READING, Nov. 9.—"Abe" Buzzard and his notorious band of thieves invited another battle with the citizens by perpetrating a series of robberies last night. They are more bold and daring than ever before. Buzzard's cabin is about a mile from here, where his wife and four children live. It is not believed that the robber chief was badly wounded in yesterday's fight, as he undoubtedly took part in the robberies last night which were discovered this morning. The thieves, as has been their custom divided in three bands, and operated on as many sections. James Heidler's cigar factory and store, at Ruthsville; George Steinmetz's near clay; Isaac Reinhe's shop, near Ruthsville; the residence of Mr. A. M. Garber, near Landisville, a Catholic church, near Elizabethtown, and Abraham Hershey's residence were robbed of silverware, merchandise, ect. The altar was robbed of its gold and silver ornaments, and the memorial window in the church were smashed. A rain storm prevailed to-day in the Ephrata hills and no one specially is after these robbers, although hundreds of citizens are assembled ready for another battle. Two dozen false keys were found on the hills. Clifford, the captured outlaw, was shot in the groin. He says the plunder is hidden all over the hills. The excitement continues unabated and if the robberies continue the governor will be appealed to.

AMERICA AHEAD.

Peculiar Characteristics of Americans—The Evils and How Restored.

In this age of bustle and hurry, an age devoted to great projects and enterprises, the American people are taking the lead in the furtherance of noble works, and in the advancement of the sciences and arts. In these they deserve to take a high rank, and through the united works of millions, the American continent is fast being transformed from its untamed state and being placed on an equality with the older continents beyond the ocean. The American people fast under these influences, developing into a nervous, energetic race, remarkable for its vim and business qualifications; yet there is danger that in the course of years these very elements may combine to the ruination of the physical character of the people, and leave them feeble and altogether different from their forefathers. General debility is now much more common than formerly, and seems to be on the increase among the masses. Many remedies have been extensively advertised for this wide spread complaint, but none of these have been so successful or met with such general favor as this remedy. Mr. S. S. Goudy, of Massillon, Stark county, Ohio, writes that he had been troubled with general debility and dyspepsia for several years; that he was induced to try PERUNA for his complaints, and that after using three bottles of the medicine he was greatly relieved. It braced him right up and gave him energy, and restored him to his youthful vigor, he ascribes his cure to PERUNA, and says it is a wonderful remedy.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 15., 1883.

BY DEININGER & BUMILLER.

LOCAL DEPARTMENT.

—Bartholomew's new house is up and under roof.

—Last Thursday Dr. Stam returned from the west well pleased with his trip.

—J. S. McCarger, of Clintondale, the active nursery man, was about here last week.

—Frank Moyer and Daniel E. Gentzel shot three fine deer near Coburn, last Friday.

—Smith's German Olio is peculiarly efficacious in cases of chronic rheumatism of long standing.

—Four first class organs, with chimes, for sale. Organs for sale or rent by C. F. Gephart.

—Miss Emma J. Catherman, of Union county, is here engaged at sewing for some of our families.

—The painters are now at work on the New Journal Building. It is beginning to assume form and beauty.

—Jeremiah Snavely will offer a valuable small farm at public sale, situate near Wolf's Store, Nov. 23rd instant.

—Col. Jacob Wolf will make sale of a lot of household goods at his late residence, Aaronsburg, Saturday, Nov. 24th inst.

—The Belmont Parlor Heater is the prettiest, the cheapest and best stove in the market. Call to see it at D. I. Brown's.

—Persons entitled to borough orders that are in my hands are hereby requested to call for them.

R. A. BUMILLER.

—Silver ore has been discovered in the Blue Hills opposite Sunbury, by a Mr. McAdams. A smelting furnace is already talked of.

—Dinges, Vonada & Co., is your place to buy cheap winter clothing. They make a specialty of that line and offer extra inducements.

—The sheriff of Union county has an unusual lot of sales advertised for next court. What's wrong down there just after the election?

—For fine Monuments and Headstones the Millheim Marble Works is the leading and best place in the county. tf

—There will be a meeting of the Centre County Pomona Grange at Centre Hall, Friday, Nov. 30th.

J. A. KELLER, Sec'

—Mrs. Mary Benner will sell a lot of household goods and her board shanty near John H. Frank's in Penn township, to-morrow at 1 o'clock, P. M.

—Landlord Frain is getting up a grand fox chase for next Saturday. The matter is an entire novelty here and many people are expected to enjoy the fun.

—Dinges, Vonada & Co, make a specialty of clothing and gent's underwear. Don't you forget this when about to make your purchases for the winter.

—The Musser & Gentzel hunting party left on Monday morning for the Alleghanies. They did not say positively just how many deer they expect to bring.

—A Cassopolis paper mentions the visit to that place of Mrs. Hoy, of Bellefonte, Mrs. Gen. Heckman, of Logansville and Miss Sarah Kline, of Aaronsburg.

—J. R. Wolfe, administrator, will again offer the valuable real estate of the late Thomas Wolfe, in Miles township, at public sale, Nov. 22nd. See notice in another column.

—DINGES VONADA & Co., have put up two fine "signs" at their store at Coburn to show people where they are and what they are doing there. Business.

—Sunday night the weather changed from warm and rainy to clear, cold and stormy, Monday would have done honor to stormy March. The wind howled fearfully through the streets and around buildings, while the air was at times darkened by the driving snow.

—Doll & Mingle's in Bellefonte, is one of the best places in Centre county to buy boots and shoes. They are first class mechanics and square business men. Their stock is large, of the best quality and their prices absolutely low. Don't fail to give them a call when you go to Bellefonte. 3t

—Orvis, the junior editor of the Bellefonte Democrat, has been traveling the country over, and says all sorts of nice things of its towns and people. Lasts week he touches up Millheim in the following good style, to all of which the Journal pleads guilty:

Everything about this town shows life and business activity. It is in the air and in the bustle on the streets that Millheim is the metropolis of this region. It has doubled in size in the last ten years and the modern buildings now erected and in process of erection are fast changing the appearance of the quaint old town.

—Mr. J. Willis Musser has bought out the stage route from Woodward to Millheim, but also goes to Coburn every morning. He carries express and other goods from all points along the line at very moderate charges, and continues the calf and poultry business. tf

—The first number of the Lock Haven Daily Democrat is before us. It is a nice, clean paper, of good size, and well filled with good local and general reading matter. Mrs. Helen M. Whaley is the proprietor and publisher, and Mr. E. H. Thielecke editor.

We wish the new enterprise abundant success.

—Mrs. M. S. Feidler sent our estimable other half four cabbage heads of the new BEAT ALL variety that are a real pleasure to behold. The biggest measures 39 inches in circumference, trimmed of the outside leaves, and weighs 12½ pounds. The others are only a trifle less. Mrs. Yoney is defeated this trip and the JOURNAL lady is happy, awaiting further returns.

NOTICE.—All persons indebted to the estate of the late John D. Foote who have received notice from the subscriber requesting payment, are hereby notified that unless immediate payment be made their accounts will at once be placed into the hands of a justice of peace for peremptory collection.

—"An Ocean Trip to California and the Habits and Customs of the Chinese" is the subject of a lecture to be delivered next Thursday evening, Nov. 15, by Rev. C. F. Deininger, whose familiarity with this topic will insure the lecture to be both interesting and and instructive. Mr. Deininger will appear in Chinese custume, and will exhibit objects and relics illustrative of his subject.—Lewisburg Chronicle.

—Our schools opened the other Monday with good attendance and favorable auspices generally. There is good reason to believe that our corps of teachers are both competent and willing to do their duty, and if directors and parents but give them an active, cheerful support the schools will be successful. The matter so largely affects the public welfare that every citizen, whether a parent or not, should feel the proper interest in it.

—Yesterday afternoon, Mr. Jos. Nesbit, of the East Lewisburg planing mill, made a narrow escape from being instantly killed. He was standing on a plank on the second story of the engine house of the water works when the plank slipped from its fastening and Mr. Nesbit fell backwards into the cellar. In falling he struck the back of his head on the stone wall of the cellar entrance. He was taken up insensible, but soon returned to consciousness. Dr. T. H. Wilson dressed his wound and he was taken home.—Lewisburg Journal 10th.

THANKSGIVING! ENTERTAINING AND EDIFYING.—The Ladies' Aid Society of the Evangelical congregation of Millheim, aided by the Evangelical Sunday School, will give a Thanksgiving Entertainment in the Evangelical church, on Thanksgiving evening, Nov. 29th, '83. The exercises will consist of Music, Recitations, Select reading, Dialogues &c. The exercises by the children will be of special interest. The entire Programme is made up of choice and appropriate selections. The affair will be interesting and instructive, and worth many times the price of admittance. The proceeds to flow into the treasury of the Ladies Aid Society. Come one and all. Admissions 15cts. Doors open at 7 P. M., Entertainment begins at 8 P. M.

—The Luther Centenary Services on Sunday were of an interesting and highly satisfactory character to all that attended. The chapel was crowded to its utmost capacity and a number of persons were obliged to leave for want of room. A fine portrait of the great Reformer, surrounded by the historic words: "Hier stehe ich, ich kann nicht and rs, Gott helfe mir, Amen;" and "God is our refuge and strength," in triangular form, adorned in evergreen, was placed in the rear of the pulpit, while the pulpit itself was richly decorated with flowers. The choir, assisted by Dr. J. F. Harter, cornetist, rendered Luther's famous Battle Hymn—"Ein' feste Burg ist unser Gott," in a very creditable manner. Rev. Benj Haugst made the invocation. He was followed by Rev. A. K. Zimmerman in an able address on "Luther." Rev. J. K. Miller read a interesting essay on "The Influence of the Reformation."

The entire service was a rich, rare treat throughout, and the large audience seemed to appreciate and enjoy it fully.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

—On Sunday our people were kept very busy attending Sunday school and preaching. The United Brethren school met at 9 o'clock, followed by preaching at 10. Dedication of the new Evangelical church at Coburn also at 10. Lutheran school at 9½, Methodist school at 10½. Lutheran Centenary Services at 2. Preaching by an itinerant colored minister at 3½, and in the evening by Pastor Yearick, of the Reformed church. About every faith represented here as well as those of no particular faith were accommodated.

For the Journal.

The dedication of the Coburn chapel of the Evangelical Association took place on Sunday last as before announced. Rev. H. W. Gross of the Middleburg charge, was present and preached three eloquent sermons to appreciative congregations. The amount collected in cash and solid subscriptions was $500. It is a marvel of success, from the fact that the congregation is quite small and had already done well before. We would hereby tender our sincere thanks to the kind people of Coburn and vicinity, as well as to those present from abroad, for their liberality. The services will continue during the week.

In this conection we would state that during the past four weeks, there were revival services in progress at Wood ward, resulting in the conversion of twenty persons. The meeting is still in progress.

SPRING MILLS ITEMS.

Weather cold and stormy with some snow.

Prof. Wolf has started out visiting schools.

Mrs. M. A. Woods moves into her new house this week, which is now a very respectable property.

David Burrell was laid up for a few days with a sprained ankle and bruised foot, caused by a stone falling on it.

Sorry that Dr. Geo. S. Frank leaves us. He goes to Reversburg. The Doctor has made many friends here, and we wish him continued success at Rebersburg. His leaving makes a very good opening for some other young Doctor of the right stamp.

Our Nimrods, Bibby, Kennely, Leitzell, Korman and others were rather successful. They brought home four fine deer. Did they remember the printer? (No, but the printer will remember them.—Ed.)

The Union Sunday School rewarded some of their scholars. Miss Mary A. Miller, the organist, received a very handsome bible and a little gurl, Esther Alexander, who had not missed a Sanday, got a two cent chromo. Why are things thus—why not reward according to merit.

Two of our fancy young men went to Coburn on Sunday evening to attend church. When they were about starting for home they found their horse untied and the buggy desecrated. For shame! Hope the wretches who did it may be found out and brought to justice.

Called to the Bench.

Governor Pattison will to-morrow nominate for the advice and consent of the senate Adam Hoy, Esq., of Bellefonte, to be president judge of the court of Centre county to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Judge J. H. Orvis. Mr. Hoy is a lawyer of distinguished ability and his appointment will be cordially endorsed by the bar and people concerned.—Patriot 13th.

The matter stated fully means that Mr. Hoy is the new President Judge of the Centre and Huntingdon Judicial District—and it affords the JOURNAL infinite pleasure thus to state it. Mr. Hoy is a gentleman of a fine general education, a graduate of Pennsylvania College, solid legal qualifications, acquired by close application to his profession through many years of practice He was a student of the late Judge Hale and does honor to his illustrious preceptor.

Judge Hoy ascends the bench under very favorable auspices. The people of every class and party have the fullest confidence in his integrity and ability. They feel that their interests and business will be in safe hands, and it is to be hoped that Gov. Pattison's fortunate choice will be endorsed by a nomination and election by the people, next fall.

FOR THE FARM AND HOME.

Destroying the Cabbage Worm.

Dr. Sturtevant, director of the agricultural experiment station at Geneva, N. Y., says of his efforts to destroy the cabbage worm:

"We have warred against them with tobacco water, saltpetre, alcohol, boracic acid, bisulphide of carbon, etc., in various combinations, but we finally settled upon an emulsion of kerosene oil and soapsuds as the remedy that, all things considered, was the most satisfactory. It appears that one ounce of common yellow, hard soap, one pint of kerosene oil, and one and one-half gallons of water, well mixed and stirred, and applied by means of a rose from a watering pot destroys all worms that become thoroughly wet with the mixture, and does not injure the plant. Care must, however, be taken to keep the ingredients thoroughly mixed in the pot, for if the oil is permitted to rise to the surface, so that it will pass out upon a few plants, it will prove fatal to the few, while the remainder will not receive enough of the oil to destroy the worms."

Texture of Soils.

Soils differ not only in chemical properties, but in physical characteristics. In respect to texture soils range all the way from coarse pebbles to the finest and most tenacious of clay.

Speaking in a general way, soils best adapted for agriculture are those which consist of mixtures of sand with a moderate quantity of clay and a little vegetable matter. When sand or other coarse material predominates, the soil, as all farmers know, is easy till and will grow a great variety of crops, but it is deficient in absorbent and retentive powers.

On the other hand, when clay is in excess the soil becomes too heavy to to till and will grow fewer crops; it is retentive of water, is cold and does not facilitate the chemical changes in the soil and the manure placed in it necessary to prepare proper food for plants.

Clay lands are the most difficult to work; sandy soils the most easy. Less work can be done in a day with the same power on clay and heavy soils than on light, sandy ones, and this consideration ought to be borne in mind when stocking a farm with working animals and when making estimates in the cost of growing crops.—New York World.

Churning.

Sweet cream just removed from the milk does not churn as readily as older cream that has been "ripened," if any one knows exactly what that term signifies, says the New England Farmer. Cream that is too warm sometimes gives trouble, but if it is much too cold it is very sure to. Very thin cream is longer in coming than cream that is moderately firm, but a very frequent cause of delay in bringing butter is from filling the churn too nearly full of cream. Something depends too, upon the character of the churn. A churn that agitates the cream with great violence, as when the floats are small, and are revolved at a high rate of speed, is likely to tear the cream to pieces and beat it into a froth, like eggs under a beater. The churn, however, is usually less at fault than the cream or the operator. If cream is churned very slowly there may be so little friction that it will never come. By slow turning the temperature may change so much during the operation as to prevent success. If a plain box or barrel churn is filled very full, and the cream swells, the revolutions may go on without agitating the cream at all, and if the churn has a crank and floats the cream may be revolved in a solid body without friction, except upon very small portions of the cream. As a rule, a churn should be not much more than half full of cream at any time, though much depends upon the character of the cream. If it has been raised from scalded milk it will churn under almost any condition. It is in cool weather in spring and fall that trouble is most frequent, but very hot weather, unless ice is used, is almost as bad. Those who change from the old-fashioned open pans to some one of the new deep-setting systems, are pretty sure to have more or less trouble in churning, chiefly because in deep-setting the bulk of the cream is increased, and the churn is consequently much fuller when used. This alone is often a sufficient explanation of the cause of the cause of the difficulty when cream refuses to be changed into butter.

Household Hints.

Dried orange peel is said to be better than kerosene for kindling fires.

Kid shoes can be kept soft and free from cracks by rubbing them once a week with pure glycerine.

To remove egg stains from silver spoons take a little common salt between the thumb and finger and rub the stain briskly. Then wash in hot suds.

Artistic lamp shades can be made of pink tissue paper, cut in eight points and scalloped. To prinkle the shade double it up lengthwise and pass tightly pressed, through the hand.

After boiling a ham remove the skin, sprinkle the top with sugar and put in a hot oven to brown. This is the method followed by the best cooks and gives the ham a delicious flavor.

SIX-LEGGED POLICEMEN.

The Arrest of a Drunken Ant—Something About Animal Prisons and Prisoners.

"Just cast your eye over this," said a naturalist. "There is evidence that among the animals there is a police department or an ambulance corps, one or the other."

The reporter closed one eye, holding it shut with one hand, and with the other gazed through a powerful magnifier. He saw three ants, and one was apparently in a very maudlin condition. It raised its legs in the air, waved its head to and fro like an elephant, and evinced a decided desire to walk backward. In the mean time the other two ants were vainly endeavoring to coax it along, at first caressing it with their antennæ, and finally, as if out of patience, seizing it and marching it off out of the range of vision.

"That," said the naturalist, "is a case of 'drunk and disorderly; $10 or ten days.' I fed the ant on sweetened rum, so that it was actually drunk; then I admitted two sober ants to see if they would take care of it, and you see they have done so.

"The idea of intoxicating ants is original with Sir John Lubbock. He found that ants nearly always arrested other ants that he had made drunk. In fact, if you asked me what was the most intelligent animal next to man I should say the ant. No, not because he will get drunk, but for a thousand reasons."

"Do you suppose ants imprison their kind for offences?" asked the reporter.

"There is no doubt of it," was the reply, "as they imprison vast numbers of insects for various reasons. In fact, the lower animals have their prisons and prisoners as well as we do. Of course they are a little different, but we must allow for a difference in tastes. Everybody knows how ants make prisoners of various species of aphides, and slaves of their own kind. One of the most remarkable cases of imprisonment is that of the bird hornbill, so called from the wonderful development of its bill, which is only used in crushing fruit. The breeding season is probably not looked forward to with any great degree of pleasure by the birds, as it is a period of close imprisonment for the mother and of great labor for the father bird. As the time approaches the female searches for a hollow tree, and, having formed a rude nest, takes her place within. The male now flies away and returns with its bill full of mud, which it plasters about the opening of the nest. Load after load is thus brought and laid on until the crevice is completely plastered up, with the exception of a single orifice large enough to admit the bill of the prisoner. The mud soon hardens, and the bird is firmly enclosed, and so remains until the young are hatched and well grown. The male bird is not a hard jailer, however, but works to obtain food for its mate, so that she comes out of prison in much better condition than her unfortunate jailer.

"Trees are not the only prisons," continued the speaker. "In marine life there is no end of prisons and prisoners. For example, here is the beautiful sponge called Venus's flower basket which grows in eastern seas. They are unsightly objects when first taken up, the rich sheeny silvery framework that we see being merely the skeleton of the sponge, so to speak. So much like basket work is this skeleton that when they were first brought to Europe they were supposed to be the work of men, and so brought fabulous prices. In this one that I have you see there are two prisoner crabs, but how did they get in? Each is as large as the end of your little finger, and the largest hole in the skeleton is not larger than a pinhead."

"The reporter gave it up.

"The truth is," said the naturalist, "that the crabs are prisoners for life, and have served out a life sentence. In their younger days these crabs are called by different names, and in one stage—the zoea—they are extremely small, and live a roaming sort of life. During this time our crabs must have crawled through the minute window of the living sponge, and were unable to get out. The sponge grew, and so did the crabs. Finally the sponge was fished up, and the animal matter was washed away, leaving the bright, silvery prison with the two great prisoners crawling about—as great a puzzle as the egg in the bottle."—New York Sun.

Queen Victoria's Proposal.

Mrs. Oliphant writes in the Century: "There was a story current at the time, that at a state ball, very near the period of their betrothal, the young lady gave her princely suitor a rose, which he, without a button-hole in his close-fitting uniform, slit the breast of his coat to find a place for, and that this was a token to all the court of the final determination of the great event—her Majesty, as it is pleasant to hear, having shown herself a little coy and disposed to put off the explanation, as happy girls are wont to do. No more perfect marriage has ever been recorded; the Queen herself attributes the formation of her character to it, and all that is most excellent in her life."

LATEST NEWS.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther was celebrated at Eisleben, Germany, his birthplace, by the unveiling with imposing ceremonies of a statue of the reformer. Exercises were also held in other German cities and throughout Europe.

It is both affirmed and denied in Paris that the United States had offered to mediate between France and China.

A republican demonstration was held in Madrid yesterday in memory of the first president of the Spanish Republic.

It is said that the London police think that they have traced to New York conspirators the authors of the recent London explosion.

The fire in the cotton on the steamer Spearman, at Key West, Fla., destroyed or damaged 1,400 bales.

The greater part of the business portion of Bluffton, Texas, was burned Saturday. The fire was of incendiary origin.

Mr. Asa Biggs and his wife, a young couple formerly of Norfolk, have been burned to death at their home in Southampton county, near Franklin, by the explosion of a kerosene lamp.

The birth day of Martin Luther has been universally celebrated throughout the United States. The celebration has been marked with divine worship, as well as social ceremonies.

The projected visit of the Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany to Spain excites much interest. Emperor William, it is reported, has written to King Alfonso to say that ill-health alone prevents a visit from him in person.

The London doctors are threatening to commence a campaign against all canned goods, as several cases of sickness have recently been reported as having been caused by eating food which had been put up in cans.

Mayor Edson, of New York, has signed the resolution adopting from November 18 the new time standard based upon the time of the 75th meridian, and directing that the public clocks shall agree therewith.

The South, including Baltimore will, doubtless adopt the new standard time, which goes into effect November 18, in all the Eastern cities, and by all the railroads. The time is about six minutes faster than the present regulation.

In New York detectives arrested Wm. E. Brockaway, Natnaniel B. Foster and Lewis Martin on the charge of being engaged in counterfeiting. Complete counterfeiting apparatus with some completed work were found in their rooms.

The tannery of James Calley & Co., in Allegheny City, Pa., and a row of brick dwelling-houses belonging to the same firm have been burned; loss $125,000, insurance $75,000. Fire also broke out in the East Liberty stockyards, Pittsburgh, and did $50,000 damage.

The steamboat Tallahasse, of the Ocean Steamship Company of Savannah, Ga., sailed from that port on Friday with 3,200 bales of cotton and a quantity of turpentine and rosin on board. She had a crew of 47 men and 13 passengers. When off the Highlands yesterday evening she was discovered to be on fire. Capt. Fisher ordered the engineer to run her at full speed. The burning steamer arrived at pier 35 North river, New York, at 10 o'clock last night.

GENERAL NEWS.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—There has been another anti-Jewish outbreak in Hungary. The troops charged the mob, and a number of persons were wounded. Several arrests were made.

Sixty-seven lives were lost by the late colliery explosion in England.

The four-hundredth anniversary of Martin Luther was celebrated in Berlin yesterday.

A Georgia correspondent gives the following account of the reception of General Toombs into the church: "General Robert Toombs was baptized and admitted into the Methodist Church roll of members by Bishop Pierce last Sunday. The discourse of the Bishop was after his usual splendid style, and was heard by quite a large congregation. After the sermon, during the ceremonies at the reception of the new member, scarcely a dry eye could have been found in the house, so great was the joy felt by the people when they knew that our grand old citizen had made peace with his God. Mr. Gabriel Toombs has long been a Christian, and the sight of the pleasure of his face as he stood by his brother during the ceremonies is well worth one's memory for years to come."

The Wide, Wide World.

LIMA, REPUBLIC OF PERU.—Senor A. de La E. Delgado, L. L. D. and Counsellor, Tribunal of Justice, Lima, Republic of Peru, says: One single application of St. Jacobs Oil, cured me completely of rheumatic pains in my left arm. I recommended it to two of my friends, the Mrs. Dona Juana Garcia, widow, and Mr. D. Herman Decker, a German gentleman. Madam Garcia was relieved entirely by the pain-cure from terrible neuralgic pains of ten months standing. Mr. Decker was cured of inexplicable pains by a single application of the cure. My brother used the great remedy for a species of paralysis of the arm. He was entirely relieved from his ailment by one or two applications, after having tried numberless other remedies without effect.

A Drudge.

A little girl unconsciously and touchingly testified to the excessive drudgery of her mother's life when, on being asked, "Is your mother's hair gray?" she replied: "I don't know; she's too tall for me to see the top of her head, and she never sits down."

The best way to discipline one's heart against scandal is to believe all stories to be false which ought not to be true.

That which seemeth most casual and subject to fortune is yet disposed by the ordinance of God.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have frequent headache, mouth tastes bad, poor appetite, tongue coated, you are suffering from torpid liver, or "biliousness." Nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." By all druggists.

Much of the charity that begins at home is too feeble to get out of doors.

THE BILIOUS,

dyspeptic or constipated, should address, with two stamps for pamphlet, WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

If you would never have an evil deed spoken of in connection with you, don't do one.

Who has not seen the fair, fresh young girl transformed in a few months into the pale, haggard, dispirited woman? The sparkling eyes are dimmed, and the ringing laugh heard no more. Too often the causes are disorders of the system which Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" would remedy in a short time. Remember, that the "Favorite Prescription" will unfailingly cure all "female weaknesses," and restore health and beauty. By all druggists. Send three stamps for Dr. Pierce's treatise on Diseases of Women (96 pages). Address WORLD'S MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

Our Best Families.

I have been troubled for over six years with a severe kidney complaint, also a weakness of the urinary organs, with its attendant troubles. My water needed constant attention, some days as many as twenty times, with severe pains in the bladder, as well as in the back and loins. At times I passed a limited quantity of urine, highly colored with unnatural heat and sediment; frequently evacuations would be very painful. I concluded that I must do something for it, fearing that more serious trouble would follow. I went to the druggist and was recommended to use Hunt's Remedy, as it had been used with wonderful success in several severe cases of dropsy and kidney and bladder affections here in Bangor. I concluded to try it, and before I had used one bottle found it was helping me beyond my expectations. My water became more natural, less color and sediment, the pains in back and that heavy feeling gone with a general toning up of the system; and I continued to use it until I used six bottles, and it has completely cured me. Others of my family have used Hunt's Remedy with equally as good success, and we do not hesitate to recommend it far and near, believing it a duty as well as a pleasure to recommend so good a medicine as Hunt's Remedy. You are at liberty to give my testimony to the public. D. T. HODGDEN.

A Druggist's Story.

Mr. Isaac C. Chapman, druggist, Newburg, N. Y., writes us: "I have for the past ten years sold several gross of Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam for the Lungs. I can say of it what I cannot say of any other medicine. I have never heard a customer speak of it but to praise its virtue in the highest manner. I have recommended it in a great many cases of whooping cough, with the happiest effects. I have used it in my own family for many years; in fact, always have a bottle in the medicine closet ready for use."

A NOTED BUT UNTITLED WOMAN.

[From the Boston Globe.]

Messrs. Editors:—

The above is a good likeness of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., who above all other human beings may be truthfully called the "Dear Friend of Woman," as some of her correspondents love to call her. She is zealously devoted to her work, which is the outcome of a life-study, and is obliged to keep six lady assistants, to help her answer the large correspondence which daily pours in upon her, each bearing its special burden of suffering, or joy at release from it. Her Vegetable Compound is a medicine for good and not evil purposes. I have personally investigated it and am satisfied of the truth of this.

On account of its proven merits, it is recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country. One says: "It works like a charm and saves much pain. It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhœa, irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life."

It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

It costs only $1. per bottle or six for $5., and is sold by druggists. Any advice required as to special cases, and the names of many who have been restored to perfect health by the use of the Vegetable Compound, can be obtained by addressing Mrs. P., with stamp for reply, at her home in Lynn, Mass.

"Mrs. Pinkham's Liver Pills," says one writer, "are the best in the world for the cure of Constipation, Biliousness and Torpidity of the liver. Her Blood Purifier works wonders in its special line and bids fair to equal the Compound in its popularity.

All must respect her as an Angel of Mercy whose sole ambition is to do good to others.

Like an Evil Spirit.

In olden times it was thought that evil spirits came in through cracks and keyholes. The generally approved way to keep them out was to plug up the keyholes and stop the cracks with cotton. Notwithstanding these preventive measures, the evil things had their own way and often came in as they pleased.

So comes malaria now-a-days. We try to keep it out of the keyhole and it comes in by the crack. We stop up the crack, and lo! it comes from a leak in the plumbing, or an opening from some neglected drain, or from some unsuspected source and unguarded direction.

We cannot always keep malaria out, but we can give it battle and drive its eff
